

1ST | Heller & Associates Design + Build, with
Marilynn Silberman from Studio Loft

The design challenge in this project was to create a stair and railing that feels clean and modern, while fitting a traditional Shingle-style home. The continuous use of spindles with no newel posts posed an engineering challenge; the solution was to fabricate an extensive, hidden fastening system. The result is a fluid, consecutive, thin-spindle radius that curves through multiple radius points in a wave-like manner. Soft LED and indirect lighting cascading from the ceiling and curved walls are the final elements that draw one into the space.

2ND | Cottage Company Interiors, with
Cottage Company Fine Builders

3RD | Ann-Marie Anton for It's Personal
Design, with Young & Young Architects

Cottage Company Interiors, with Cottage Company Fine Builders | 1ST

The beautiful outdoors takes center stage in this sunroom, located on the third floor, and guests can enjoy the best of both the indoors and outdoors. Comfy linen fabric chairs swivel to allow for a 360-degree view of blue sky and water, while the natural wicker coffee table provides texture and interest.

Marianne Jones, LLC, with Mocerri Custom Homes | 2ND

Patrick Widing Custom Homes, with WW Masonry | 3RD

Cottage Company Interiors, 1ST with Cottage Company Fine Builders

This lakeside retreat isn't overstuffed or over-decorated; its beauty is in the simple mix of the personal, the comfortable, and the new, without the clutter that distracts from the stunning views outside and the details inside — including extensive millwork, beadboard paneling, and lightly weathered wood floors. The home evokes the easy, carefree feel of boating and beach-going, and the rooms are designed to be manageable in scale and encourage interaction and relaxed living. Open living areas, abundant windows, and extensive porches make it possible to live here with style and ease.

Mike Schaap Builders Inc., 2ND
with Landry Design Group

Visbeen 3RD
Architects

1ST | Cottage Company Interior Design, with Cottage Company Fine Builders

Amazingly refreshing, this single-family condo perches above a beautiful harbor and sandy beach. Calm and serene, with a touch of whimsy, the condo was designed for a family of five and their extended network of family and friends. Natural fibers, neutral colors, and interesting textures grace the rooms with a touch of aqua. The goal was to create spaces that were cozy, yet comfortable, for both small and large groups. Extensive millwork, beadboard, and hand-blown lighting make this home truly special.

2ND | Kathleen McGovern Studio

3RD | Ethan Allen

“ Judge’s Insights

We love the light and serenity in every single space of the Cottage Company Interior Design condominium.”

— Judge Amy Fleischman